PILES! PILES! PILES!

A Sure Cure Found at Last—No One Need Suffer!

A sure cure for blind, bleeding, itching and ulcerated piles has been discovered by Dr. Williams' Indian Ointment. A single box has cured the worst chronic cases of twenty-five or thirty years standing. No one need suffer five minutes after applying this wonderful soothing medicine. Lotions instruments and electrics do more harm than good. Williams' Ointment absorbs the tumors, allays the intense itching, (particularly at night after getting warm in bed,) acts as a poultice, gives instant and painless relief, and is prepared only for piles, itching of the private parts, and nothing else.

Read what the Hon. J. M. Coffinberry, of Cleveland, says about Dr. Williams' Pile Ointment: I have used scores of pile cures, and it affords me pleasure to say that I have never found anything which gave me such immediate and permanent relief as Dr. Williams' Indian Ointment.

For sale by George T. Wood or mailed on receipt of price, $1.

By DR. FRAZIER'S MAGIC OINTMENT. Cure as if by magic, pimples, black head or grubs, blotches and eruptions on the face, leaving the skin clear, healthy and beautiful. Also cures itch, barber's itch, salt rheum, tetter, ringworm, scald head, chapped hands, sore nipples, sore lips, old obstinate ulcers and sores, &c.

SKIN DISEASE.

F. Drake, Esq., Cleveland, O., suffered beyond all description from a skin disease which appeared on his hands, head and face, and nearly destroyed his eyes. The most careful doctoring failed to help him, and after all had failed he used Dr. Frazier's Magic Ointment and was cured by a few applications.

The first and positive cure for skin diseases ever discovered.

HENRY & CO., Sole Prop'rs,

For blind, bleeding, itching or ulcerated piles. Dr. Williams' Indian Pile Ointment is a sure cure. Price $1, by mail. For sale by George T. Wood, druggist.

Dr. Frazier's Root Bitters.

Frazier's Root Bitters are not a dram-shop whisky beverage, but are strictly medicinal in every sense. They act strongly upon the liver and kidneys, keep the bowels open and regular, make the weak strong, heal the lungs, build up the nerves and cleanse the blood and system of every impurity.

For dizziness, rush of blood to the head tending to apoplexy, dyspepsia, fever and ague, dropsy, pimples and blotches, scrofulous humors and sores, tetter, ring worm, white swelling, erysipelas, sore eyes and for young men suffering from weakness or debility caused from imprudence, and to females in delicate health, Frazier's Root Bitters are especially recommended.

Dr. Frazier: I have used two bottles of your Root Bitters for dyspepsia, dizziness, weakness and kidney disease, and they did me more good than the doctors and all the medicine I ever used. From the first dose I took I began to mend, and I am now in perfect health, and feel as well as I ever did. I consider your medicine one of the greatest blessings.

Mrs. M. MARTIN, Cleveland, O.
Sold by George T. Wood at $1 per bottle.

The Wealth of Colorado.

The silver mines of our greatest mountain chain are admitted in all countries to be superior to all others in the world. They, and they alone, have created out of vast tracts of wilderness and desert populous, rich and thriving Territories and States—and all this within the space of a few years. Very many of the moneyed princes of the world owe their great wealth to the mines of Colorado, Nevada and California. They had faith in the inexhaustible mineral resources of the Rocky Mountains, and the result has justified their faith. In these mountains silver mining has arrived at the stage of a regular and systematic industry; an industry of which the United States Commissioner of Mining Statistics says: "It is the safest and most profitable of all industries." It is never hurt or shaken by panics, which are becoming so frequent, and which so often retard or ruin every other industry.

There is only one class of persons connected with mining interests who, in the aggregate, are so unfortunate as not to make large profits. They are the discoverers. They are a class peculiar by themselves; they are in a measure nomads, who, having cut loose, for one reason and another, from home ties and the influence of refined society, wander up and down over the great mining districts, seeking for a find, and when once found they sell it for a pittance, not knowing how good "they have struck it," for lack of scientific knowledge, and so they move on for the next, with the singular ambition to be known as excellent in discoveries. Fascinated with the romance, rudeness, and independence of camp life, they live up in the great mountains, glory in their privations, and look down with pity upon the more effeminate dwellers upon the plains. They have no money to develop their discoveries, and have lost all business habits, if they ever had any, and do not know how to deal with capital seeking investment.

Comstock, the discoverer of the world-famed Comstock, out of which the considerably over one hundred millions of dollars has already been taken, sold it for $750 worth of groceries. One of the discoverers of the "Terrible," out of which so much money has been made, sold his half for $500, and the remaining half was sold a few days later for a trifle more. The great "Hercules" was sold by the discoverers for a "mere song." The history of mining is filled with such instances, where these invaluable pioneers of the world's wealth have pointed the way to great riches for others, but have got scarcely anything for themselves.

Silver mining can be traced as far back into antiquity as written history. In the time of Abraham, Moses and Solomon silver was used, and the same may be said of the Egyptians, the Greeks and the Romans. There were silver coins 895 B. C. The Romans employed 25,000 men in a single mine; the Carthaginians, 40,000 men in the mines of Spain. Hannibal took from one mine £500,000 a year; Cato as much from mines, and Helvetius twice as much. Herodotus says: "The nations subdued by the Persians, except the Indies and Antioch, paid a yearly tribute of £3,000,000 in silver."

Pliny says that in his time silver mines in Spain were penetrated a mile and a half. According to Prescott, the historian, Prince Atahulpa, made prisoner, had gathered to pay for his liberty the value of $3,500,000 gold, and 51,610 marks, or about 25,805 pounds of silver. From 1784 to 1827 the great silver mines of Pasco, in South America, smelted 4,967,710 pounds troy silver. The silver mines of Bolivia and Peru yielded from their discovery by the Spaniards in 1845 a quantity of silver equal in value £506,220,000. The Grand Potosi, of Bolivia was discovered in 1545. Since then it has produced £240,000,000 in silver.

Humboldt's "Essai Politique" states that the mines of Mexico of only a few central spots, yielded between the conquest and 1805, $2,027,952,000.

The great mining regions of the United States have produced of the precious metals since the first discoveries in California, a little over thirty years ago, the enormous sum of not less than $2,000,000,000, of which a large proportion is silver.

The mines of Colorado produce chiefly silver. The vast wealth of the great deposits in that State are just beginning to be appreciated. In 1876 her mines produced about $5,000,000. In 1880 they produced $28,000,000, about $4,000,000 more than any other State or Territory. Scientists, experts and practical miners assert with emphasis that Colorado is to be the great bullion center of the world. Certain it is that her wonderful mineral resources are drawing immense capital and rapidly covering her valleys and mountains with a net work of railroads.

Is not this the "Golden Age" of the world, with the most magnificent opportunities to those who have enterprise or capital?

He Couldn't Believe It.

"Where am I?" asked Henry Slater, as he balanced before the desk and looked around him.

"You are in court for being drunk," replied His Honor.

"Well, did I ever! Is this a court?"

"It is."

"And I was drunk?"

"You were."

"Great lands! but the idea! When did I get drunk?"

"Last night."

"Is it possible! What did I get drunk on?"

"Beer, I think, by your looks."

"Lands alive! And what did I do?"

"You lay down on the sidewalk."

"Do tell! It doesn't seem possible! Am I in Detroit?"

"You are."

"Great snakes! Well, who'd a thought it! Then this is a court?"

"Yes."

"Sakes to gracious! but I can hardly believe it! Why, I never got drunk in my life before, and this is the first time I was ever a prisoner! Will you fine me?"

"Yes, five dollars."

"Horn spoons and sal-peter! Well, if this won't be news to the old woman! Here's your money, Judge, and if you would let me sit down here a spell to find out who I am, and where I am, I'd be powerfully obliged. Well, did I ever! The old woman won't believe it, and the boys will think I've turned out a crank. Drunk—arrested—fined $5! Land and oceans! but what on airth has got into me!"

THE Philadelphia Times says that the American kiss is to be the subject of a book to be published soon. The subject is a very expansive and voluminous one. It will take at least a hundred chapters to give an unabridged definition of the American kiss. It will require no less than twenty pages to portray the different variations of "the long, long kiss, the kiss of lovers;" and there is the good-night kiss at the gate, that will pretty well crowd the balance of the first volume. Then there is the frigid, snappy kiss of the mother-in-law, that goes off with a pop like a champagne cork; the juicy, flabby kiss of the baby, that has no pop to it at all, and the insipid oleomargarine kiss of woman kissing woman. Oh, it will be a daisy of a book; and how comforting to a young man, who has a fever blister on his lip.

The misunderstanding between Senator Williams and Representative Blackburn has been adjusted to the satisfaction of both gentlemen. They met on Friday, talked the matter over and parted friends.

AN Oshkosh, Wis., special reports a great scarcity of cattle in that vicinity, and a beef famine is feared. That section has been completely scoured for live stock without much success. Farmers have few cattle on account of the scarcity of corn. An effort will be made to secure the importation of cattle from other points.

The railroad commission, authorized by the last legislature, is now fully organized, and has announced that it is ready to consider all business that may be brought before it. Complaints of extortion and discrimination should be made in writing and in the form of charge and specification, and should be addressed to the board at Frankfort.

The case of the State against W. C. Whipps, of Louisville, has been decided by the court of appeals in favor of Whipps. The decision sustains the act of the Legislature authorizing Whipps to dispose of the Willard Hotel by lottery and adjudges that it was not in conflict with the clause of the constitution, which prohibits the granting of exclusive privileges to any individual. The court was divided, judges Lewis and Pryor affirming and Hines and Hargis dissenting. The delayed lottery will now, probably, take place.

A great scandal was caused in Cornwall a few months ago by the elopement of a young lady, the daughter of a gentleman well known in the county, with her father's groom. They fled to South Africa, and recently letters were received announcing that the damsel is on her way home, having left her companion in a hotel at Natal, where he had been engaged as waiter.

Mrs. Prosser and her daughter Anna of Battle Creek, Mich., were very unhappy over the ill-fortune which persistently followed them, and the latter proposed suicide. It was agreed that they should leap into the river together. This they did. The water was not deep, and Anna, chilled and frightened by the plunge, waded safely out. The mother made no attempt to save herself, and was drowned. The daughter now upbraids herself for breaking the compact, and believes it is her solemn duty to die without delay, and requires constant watching to prevent self-destruction.

Bishop Paine is ninety. Maysville in 1838.

The extracts given below are taken from the Maysville Monitor, printed in this city, June 14 1838, by R. H. Stanton. They refer to subjects that will be recalled to mind by our older citizens. The following notice addressed "To the owners of stallions and breeders of blooded horses, north of Licking," shows that racing was recognized as legitimate sport in those days:

The subscriber, owning some blooded stock, and feeling desirous of contributing to the sports of the turf upon a modest scale, offers the following challenges for the acceptance of those who may be engaged in breeding similar stock. He will not say that he can beat, but he feels willing to back his filly Ellen Tree, four years old, by Brown Sumpter, dam the dam of Lucifer by imported Frederick, against any horse, mare or gelding owned north of Licking for $500 a side, half forfeit two mile heats. He is also desirous of raising a sweepstake for three year olds, $100 entrance, half forfeit, to come off the ensuing fall, to name the stallion upon making the entry and run any colt of his get. He will also enter into similar arrangements with the one and two-year old colts of Sumpter, to run the fall after they are three years old. He will likewise enter into a stallion stake (with the get of the present year) to run the fall after they are three years old, $100 entrance, to name the stallion upon making the entry, and run any of his get of that year. THOMAS MARSHALL, Washington, Ky., May 17, 1838.

In another place the stallion Eclipse Archy is advertised by George Peyton, Brown Sumpter by Anthony Kilgore, and Florizel by William O'Conner.

The Washington Hotel and Eagle Tavern are announced as the places of entertainment, and Peter Skean, as agent for McNair & Weaver's Good Intent Stage Line.

Among other advertisements is one signed by Patrick McGovern warning the public "against a scoundrel named William Thompson," and reciting the following facts:

On Thursday the 10th of May 1838, on the turnpike road between Ripley and Russellville, in Brown county, Ohio, the subscriber, who was at work on the road, being somewhat indisposed, entrusted to the care of said Thompson, for safe keeping, a sum of money, between twenty and thirty dollars (the exact amount not recollected) also, a due bill on Joseph Rushforth and Andrew Fulton, for $78 50. On the 11th of May said Thompson absconded without returning either the notes or money. The said Thompson is a slim, gaunt man, about five feet ten or eleven inches high, dark complexioned and slim visaged. The subscriber will give $10 reward for the apprehension of said swindler.

In an article about a fourth of a column in length, the editor of the Monitor pays his respects to one Samuel Dyke, alias "Daddy Dyke" a strolling actor who appears to have victimized some of the people of the city. He is denounced as having "as little sense of shame as he has of honesty."

THE Rome correspondent of the Manchester Signal says:

W. H. Means, of Maysville, while up last week, purchased a gray eagle shot by a backwoodsman. It measured six feet and six inches between the tips of its wings.

CARDS have been issued announcing the marriage of Mr. John H. Hall, of this city to Miss Sallie A. Sutherland, of Winchester, Ky., at the Baptist Church, in the latter place on Thursday evening, June 1st.

THE Augusta Bulletin says:

During the races at Maysville, the past week, that place was full to overflowing, and all speak in high terms of the exhibition of fine horse flesh and graceful riding.

ROBERT HOWARD, the other day, delivered to Fitch & Stevens, of Manchester, a lot of tobacco grown on one and a half acres of land, for which he received $378. It brought 20 cents a pound and was considered the best raised in the county this season.

The Pound Gap Railroad Suspends Operation.

Enquirer, Tuesday, May 21.

Newport railroad circles were shaken from center to circumference, yesterday, over the announcement that the much-talked-of Cincinnati and South-eastern Railroad, otherwise known as the Pound Gap Road, had suspended operations for want of funds. Just why the road has suspended payment cannot definitely be ascertained until the New York headquarters are heard from.

The suspension is all the more disastrous from the fact that the road runs twenty-eight miles through Campbell county, and many farms and homesteads will be almost hopelessly ruined unless the road is finally completed.

Messrs. Dickson and Colton, of this city, are the principal contractors, their contract extending over 128 miles of road, most of which is under way, and they are as much puzzled over the sudden turn affairs have taken as any one.

During a brief interview yesterday afternoon Mr. Colton stated that he had notified the sub-contractor and others at work on the entire line of the road to cease operations; that the Company had failed to supply them with any funds for the work done in April, and now nearly another month has passed and yet no word from headquarters. He said that he had notified the Company on four different occasions that funds were needed, and sent them a positive notice ten days ago that if the Company was not heard from work would be stopped on Friday, and no heed having been paid to the notice, I was compelled to quit work.

The Company up to that time paid all claims promptly, and we are at a loss to know what the cause of the suspension is. Over $250,000 has already been expended on the road, and several of the individuals interested are men of large means, and the Standard Oil Company is also interested. We have been prompt in meeting all our obligations, and will be able to settle in full with all the sub-contractors and others in our employ. About five hundred men have been at work on the road lately, the force having been cut down owing to the continued heavy rains. Mr. Colton stated that he did not anticipate much trouble; that the suspension may be only temporary, and work resumed in a short time.

BATCHELDER'S

Ventilated Egg Case.

Patented February 15, 1881.

Indispensible to Merchants Shippers And Producers.

The outside frame of this carrier contains five trays, held in place by fasteners at end of case, as seen in cut. These Trays are constructed in reversible halves. The above cut shows one whole tray filled ready to be placed in case, each egg resting in its cardboard socket in such a manner as to be readily counted, candied, or transferred from tray to tray, or case to case, without rehandling.

For cold storage this case will store 60 dozen with racks made to receive the half trays, hence this is the cheapest storage case manufactured, saving largely in space.

The manner of holding the eggs on end prevents oscillation, adding, or breakage, and adds greatly to their freshness when carried long in storage. Size of 30 dozen No. 1 cases 25x12x14, weighs 20 pounds.

What a Policeman Saw.

THE FIRST SCENE.

Just a wee bit of a sweet-faced child, with wonderfully clear brown eyes shining through a mass of tangled hair that drifted over them. A pair of red lips quivering with the sobs that shook her slight frame. Soft cheeks, down which the tears were falling like April rains. That was what a policeman saw.

"I want my mamma," she sobbed, in reply to a question from him. "She lives in a big house way off, Daisy said. I'm trying to find her. They put her in an ugly box and shut her up tight and papa just cried and said she was with the angels. Do you know where they are? I want to go to her. Can't you take me?"

Something in the officer's eyes made indistinct the objects around him as he took the little one in his arms and asked her name.

"Oh, it's only Mamie," she said. "Mamma's Mamie, and I know she wants me. Won't you take me too her?" He started with the light burden toward the station, but before he reached it she had fallen asleep, talking of mamma and the angels. At the station, her father, anxious and startled, was waiting to greet her, and as he took her she opened her eyes just long enough to see who he was and whisper: "Papa, mamma wants us. I know she is lonely; let us go to her;" and then the tired eyes closed again and the dainty head drooped to a broad shoulder, fast asleep.

It may be that the smile which made bright her face as she dreamed, was only the reflection of her angel mother's as it shone into that of her child. In a lonely ward in the worst part of the city last night, a brawny policeman forgot the long hours as he remembered the sweet face of a dainty bit of a girl seeking her mother who is a dweller with the angels.

THE SCENE CHANGES.

A red, bloated face over which the unkempt hair strayed as if to hide the marks of sin and shame that marred every feature. Eyes that were once beautiful, bleared with sights of debauchery, wandering half questioningly around the apartment. "Say, captain, don't put me in a cell, I'll be quiet. Let me sleep outside the bars to-night. I'm not very well, and the cells are close and ill-smelling."

They granted her wish, and soon she was fast asleep. But in her slumber she talked of a tender-faced mother who bended above her and taught her childhood's prayer. Gradually the hard look faded from her face, and even as she slept a tear forced its way from her eyes, and glistened on that seamed cheek like a jewel.

Her dream must have been a happy one, for after the tear came smiles that brought back some of the girlish fairness of a face that in other days had made a picture of beauty in a happy home. She stirred in her slumber and put out her hands appealingly as she murmured "Mother!" The turnkey turned away and busied himself with the lights that were already shining their brightest. Perhaps there were tears in his own eyes that made them seem dim to him. Who knows?

He remembered when this wretched wreck was an innocent girl with every prospect of a happy life, and here to-night a thing of shame, battered and weary from her contact with the world, a bloated, disgusting object she lies asleep on a prison floor, talking in her dreams of mother. To-morrow in the court-room she will stare grimly at the mocking crowd, and receive her sentence with unconcern. But when again the gray shadows wrap in sombre hues the city's streets, and the night hides in its mantle of blackness the outlines of hill and valley, the softly gleaming stars will peer with tenderest glance through the iron bars that guard the dingy window and see a kneeling woman, with flying hair and tear-wet eyes, gazing steadily Heavenward, while her drawn lips, bloodless and thin, shape and utter in pitiful tone, the dearest name on earth—Mother.—M. Quad.

A Swiss genius has succeeded in making a watch of paper, and this will doubtless stir up some American to bring out a crowbar made of straw.
